IS THIS GIRL FRIGID?

WHY SOPHIA LOREN TURNS DOWN LOVERS!

The hottest new star on the foreign film horizon may be as icy as the Italian Alps according to recent reports from Rome.

Sophia Loren, a Vesuvius before the camera, has already chilled four of the continent's top wolves, including the champ, Rubirosa, and Marchese Ugo Montagna, leader of the libertines. Sophia, a big (5'8"), chesty (38") blonde, spends her nights at home with momma and her 15-year-old sister Maria, according to her studio. But Roman know-it-alls say that it isn't frigidity that makes the 19-year-old heat wave turn down the offers of the big-league romancers of Europe, but an American ex-GI art student, who keeps her too busy for side-romances.

Sophia, queried on indications of frigidity turned up by Dr. Angelo Miliavacca, Italy's Dr. Kinsey, who discovered that as many as 50% of Italian women may have icewater in their veins, batted her lashes and said:

KEPT UNDER WRAPS?

"Thees freegideety, I do not know what eet ees!"

The rangy Roman beauty who rocketed to the top of the film world in a single year with nine pictures, first caught the public eye when posing for "fumetti"—the Italian equivalent of confession magazines. The provocative poses she had to assume in these magazine illustrations did little to hide the passionate possibilities of the Roman-born "huilt". By the time she was seventeen she was one of the most sought-after belles of Rome, but wherever she went, momma was not far in the background to see that things didn't get out of hand.

Since her debut as a film star, though, the tempestuous Sophia has been able to stay away from home unchaperoned more and more.

Despite this new-found freedom, though, Sophia has managed to avoid the Montagna set which became a national issue in the dope-orgy murder of Wilma Montesi recently. She gave the aging marchese the chilliest "nix" he'd ever received. Her instincts proved to be correct when the party she refused to attend reached such national notoriety that it nearly unsented the government! As far as Sophia is concerned you can keep the sophisticated amusements of the upper-crust! Give this gal a big pot of spaghetti, and a healthy GI lover, and she's as happy as a lamb in the fold.

SUPER-WOMEN!

VIRILE ISLAND GIRLS

TAKE LOVE BY FORCE!

Can men be raped? They can according to explorers recently returned from a remote group of East Indian Islands near Borneo.

Geographer Norton Kane claims to have unearthed a group of super-virile "shark women" who have completely taken over a man's place in their society, even to the point of taking the aggressive in love-making!

These unusual females, although built like the traditional island beauties, with rounded limbs and beautifully developed bosoms, have the quickness of reflex, aggressiveness, and muscular coordination of trained athletes. Kane claims that once they have decided on a man to be their lover, they can literally force him into submission.

Kane was fortunate enough to be accompanied by a group of photographers who were filming "Shark Woman," an authentic record of life in these islands. During the filming he had ample evidence of the powers of these Amazons of the Pacific.

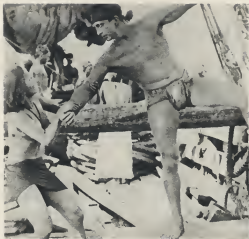

Sai-yu, seventeen-year-old shark-woman who accompanied her lover on a pearl-fishing expedition to the cannibal island of Sakai, dived into the water, and armed only with a knife, killed a twenty-foot man-eating shark who threatened her lover.

Earlier in the trip the same girl transfixed a slow-swimming giant squid with a harpoon at 25 yards.

The trip ended in near tragedy, though, when Sai-yu and her lover Ahmang on a fresh water gathering trip to Sakai narrowly escaped capture by cannibals and were forced to hide in the jungles for three days, living on raw snake and lizard meat.

Meanwhile the Chinese skipper, anxious to get back with his pearl cargo, assumed that they were captured and tried to leave without them. Only a mutiny by the Malay crew, who had more or less adopted the "Shark Woman" prevented the captain from stranding the two lovers.

The crew forced the captain to put in close to shore so that the pair would not have to swim any further than necessary through the shark-infested waters.

Kane reports, however, that tragedy finally did overcome the expedition when Sai-yu's brother, anxious to imitate his sister's prowess, dived into the shark-infested lagoon after a giant pearl. Sai-yu grabbed a native pisau (shark knife) and leaped in immediately afterward. Both disappeared under the surface of the lagoon.

"After three minutes the water turned red where Sai-yu had dived. We thought they were both gone," Kane stated.

Thirty seconds later, Sai-yu surfaced with her brother in her arms. Unfortunately, though, the boy had been so badly mauled by a tiger shark that he died soon after.

LOVELY LEE SHARON

Luscious, light-footed Lee Sharon, 22 and Texas - born, returns September 15 from a world tour that began in Tokyo and took her throughout the nite spots of the world's great capitals.

This 5' 4" blonde bundle of bodacious beauty was first discovered by Howard Hughes when she was prancing at Las Vegas' hot spot "The Desert Inn." And when she returns from her world tour she may do a movie with his RKO. If not, she has had offers to do a show on Broadway and will probably accept.

But Lou Walters at "The Latin Quarter" wants her to come back to his club, and at this date it's nip and tuck whether she'll do it.

As Lee herself says, "I owe a lot to Lou, but I owe my start to Howie. It's a very tough decision for a gal to make. I'd like to please everybody.

FRENCH UNDRESSING!

A LATIN ANALYZES THE ECDYSIASTS

When Frenchman Thierry Maulnier came to the U.S. he made a thorough study of American culture with especial attention to the art of stripping. (The strip-tease and jazz are said by scholars to be the only purely American contributions to the artforms of the world.)

To Maulnier the strip represents "a certain decadent intellectuality." He comments: "The strip-tease proceeds very quickly to the penultimate limit, . . . it is then . . . that there begins a long mimic of love with undulations . . . of a very suggestive force . . . into which are inserted at times a certain vulgar humor."

"The problem is to make love to the whole collection of males present. After all, it is one of the dimensions of the theater explored to its limit.

"The public at the burlesque is a public of couples. Neither snobs nor bums . . . Wage earners . . . Husbands come with their wives for a legitimate diversion.

Frenchman Maulnier concludes that the striptease, admittedly an American contribution to world culture, would be helped by French showmanship. What do you think?

Abstract
